MARRYING TITLES.

Some people are surprised, and some patriotically indignant, at the havoc made among our marriageable American women by foreigners with titles. Not only our young girls, just budding into society, but our bouncing mature widows are being carried over the ocean by the score, and the homes of our Fifth avenue dwellers begin to feel in the shade if they cannot announce an expected visit from "our daughter, the Marchioness of Dryrot," or "our dear child, the Countess Caruncle."

HENRY LABOUCHERE has explained the desire of the foreign nobility to seek American wives. Girls in England are awkward, red-embowed, large-footed, badly dressed, hoydenish misses, with giggling propensities and no conversational powers. American girls are handsome, natural, always at ease, a little "cheeky," well dressed, good conversationalists and free from the smell of bread-and-butter. He declares that England will continue to be overcrowded with old maids until English girls realize these facts and become Americanized.

The principal attraction of American women, however, is the fact that they have money and can do with it generally what they please. The worst use they can put it to is to bestow it on a beggarly foreigner because he happens to possess a title. They would do better to spend it on home manufactures.

ANNA DICKINSON'S CLAIM.

MISS ANNA DICKINSON has not been fairly treated by the Republican National Committee. Apart from the question of the legal status of her claim for the $1,250 for which she sues the Committee, there has been an attempt to belittle the services she rendered in the campaign. Miss DICKINSON has spoken for the Republican cause ever since the party was founded, and her addresses during the war certainly were patriotic, inspiring and useful. HORACE GALEX, were he living to-day, would appreciate her efforts, and no unkind word in relation to her would be uttered to appear in the Tribune.

The members of the Committee ought to pay Miss DICKINSON's claim, if they do so out of their own pockets. They won enough money on election bets to afford to give her five times the amount she demands as her right. It is a picaresque business to mar the celebration of a great political victory by trying to beat a woman of genius, who has helped to secure it, out of a few dollars. The Grand Old Party is not a Good Old Paymaster.

The Grand Jury investigation of the Seneca Meadows mystery has brought out the fact that the dead woman was not the tramp, MATHIA KING, after all. The Paterson Chief of Police was mistaken when he supposed that he identified the body. The crime will now, it is hoped, be brought to light if the woman was the victim of foul play.

Major JOHN A. BUTLER, who conducted Mayor HEWITT's canvass in Harlem, is now called upon to fight a campaign in the courts. Three wives are after him. The Major, who talked a great deal about honesty during the election, has been a repeater at the ballot-box of matrimony.

THE RIGHT WILL ALWAYS WIN.

A Note from John Shephard, Who Adopted the Orphan Josie.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

I take the pleasure of writing you these few lines to thank you for all that you have done for us. My mother also thanks you. I hope that you will continue in all such good works. It will teach the Juvenile Asylum authorities not to be too hasty again in their action. It was a hard fight, but the right will always win against the wrong. I held a big party here on the 27th of last month in honor of Josie Shephard's safe return home again. We had 100 people in the house at the party. I am sending Josie to the German school. He is learning German and English. Yours respectfully, JOHN SHEPHARD, 838 North Clinton street, Rochester, N. Y., Sunday, Nov. 11.

HELPING HARRISON.

More Remarkable Combinations for His Benefit.

He Certainly Should Be Able to Patch Up a Cabinet.

Gen. Grabbill Will Be There.

To the Editor of The Evening World: Secretary of State, Nobody to blame (Blaine); Secretary of Treasury, Gen. Grabbill; Secretary of War, J. O'Donovan Rooster; Secretary of Navy, Graves End Hertzberg; Postmaster General, Let her go Gallagher; Attorney General, Judge Crum; etc.

RICHARD A. NATHAN.

A Diamond Cabinet.

To the Editor of The Evening World: Secretary of State, James G. Blaine; Secretary of War, Baby Anson; Secretary of the Treasury, C. H. Byrne; Secretary of the Navy, Kelly; Secretary of the Interior, Jim Nutrie; Postmaster-General, Adonis Perry. If this Cabinet can be beaten by better known persons, I would like to see it done. Yours respectfully, HOME PLATE.

Quite a Constellation.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Here's my Cabinet, For Secretary of State, J. G. Blaine; Secretary of Treasury, Dr. McGlynn; Secretary of War, Lew Wallace; Secretary of Navy, Rear-Admiral Luce; Secretary of Interior, Grover Cleveland; Postmaster-General, Helva Lockwood; Attorney-General, Clinton B. Fisk; Secretary of Agriculture, some hayseed.

Merchandise for Private Secretary.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

I beg to submit the following as eminently suitable: Secretary of State, Pat Ford; Treasurer, John McMackin; Army, Corp. Tanner; Navy, Mr. Dudley; of Indiana; Interior, S. B. Elkins; Attorney-General, ex-Judge Terry; of California; Postmaster-General, J. J. Coogan; of New York. Your space does not permit of suggestions as to other appointments, but I would wish briefly to urge the claims of Mr. Finnerly as Minister to England, with Mr. Carnegie as his Secretary of Legation. It would be ungrateful to forget the services of Mr. Murehison, who would make an admirable private secretary to Mr. Harrison.

M. McQUADE.

A Very Decent Collection.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

Let me try my hand at Cabinet-making. Here goes: For Secretary of State, John Sherman; Treasury, William R. Allison; War, Gen. Lew Wallace; Navy, William F. Fye; Interior, Warner Miller; Postmaster-General, Gen. Russell A. Alger; Attorney-General, well, I will leave that office for Gen. Harrison; to fill in John Sherman would take the State Department; I nominate Senator George F. Hoar.

W. E. W.

What a Galaxy.

To the Editor of The Evening World:

I would suggest the following Cabinet: For President, Harrison; Secretary of State, "Wood-Pulp" Miller, of New York; Secretary of the Treasury, "Soap" Dorsey, of New Mexico; Secretary of the Interior, "Floater" Dudley, of Indiana; Secretary of War, "House on Fire" Foraker, of Ohio; Secretary of the Navy, "Fortified Statesman" Elkins, of no place in particular; Postmaster-General, "Old Subsidy" Pomeroy, of Kansas; Attorney-General, "Landulet" Williams, of Oregon. J. W. KOACH.

A GUEST'S FRIGHTFUL FALL.

Six Stories to the Stone Courtyard of the Grand Central Hotel.

A cry of agony rang through the empty corridors of the Grand Central Hotel shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, startling the newly awakened help and causing much hurry and excitement.

Other cries and groans were heard and on opening the door of the courtyard a middle-aged man who was recognized as a guest at the hotel, was found lying on the stone floor terribly crushed and unconscious. An ambulance took him to St. Vincent's Hospital, where his right leg was found to be badly fractured. He had sustained severe internal injuries.

The injured man arrived at the hotel late last night somewhat under the influence of liquor, and was taken to the courtyard. He was given a room on the sixth floor, having a window facing the courtyard. The window was found open this morning and there were scratches on the paint which showed that the man had got out to the courtyard and had either fallen or thrown himself to the yard, six stories below.

WORLDLINGS.

Mrs. Harrison is said to be an enthusiastic and successful china painter. She has her own kiln for firing her china and attends to all the details of it herself.

The great fortune of the Sturgis family, in Boston, was founded by William Sturgis, who began life as a poor Cape Cod sailor. He rose to the command of his ship, finally monopolized the trade of the Northwest Coast, and died rich.

On account of the great magnetic influence of the vast quantities of iron and steel in the Pittsburgh mills, the magnetic needle is of no practical use in that city. Civil engineers, when surveying land in the city, are obliged to abandon the use of the ordinary compass.

An American merchant who has been in business in China for several years says that the average fortune brought home by a Chinaman on his return to China from the United States is about $500. On this small sum he is able to live in comfort free from the toll of earning his living.

This is the record of Alfred Daniel, of Douglas County, Ga.; He is eighty-two years old, was never sick a day in his life, was never in bed at night, never lost a tooth, loves a good good fight, has been a deacon in the Baptist Church for fifty-eight years and never allowed an cat to escape his lips.

OUR AUTOGRAPH COLLECTION.

Misses Robinson

MISS MARY ANDERSON.

Miss Mary Anderson probably wearied of eternally hearing her acting criticized as coldly correct but without any real emotional intensity. This has been dinned into her ears ever since she first appeared on the stage, and even compliments become monotonous, you know. Her Juliet, her Rosalind, her Faustine all delighted the eye, but left the heart untouched, she was told.

No I imagine I see Miss Anderson one fine morning in the agony of deep meditation. "I evidently shall never be accepted," she says, "in the role of the young, love-stricken girl. They tell me that as I have never felt this emotion I cannot act it. That may be. But I will not be discouraged. When Mahomet found that his mountain would not come to him, why, he set out, like a brave little man, bought his ticket, and went to the mountain. The right sort of a role does not seem to come to me. I will seek it."

Miss Anderson selected "The Winter's Tale," and certainly the dual role of Hermione and Perdita calls for no very deep-moving passion. In Hermione there is despondency and congenial distress; in Perdita spontaneity and comedy. And before going any further, it must be said that Miss Anderson was eminently successful. Her success, indeed, was not one that can for a moment be questioned. Her performance was a triumph.

If she had never been seen in the roles which deal with the most overwhelming of human emotions, we might have suspected that Miss Anderson was a little of the same old story. But this we knew was not the case—more the pity. In "The Winter's Tale" Miss Anderson has made a wise and artistic selection. In this play she has never before been seen to such advantage.

The distress of a wife and the despair of a maiden are two such utterly different emotions. The former comes from wounded, conjugal affection; the latter from blighted, unattained love, dominated by unconscious sexuality. The external expression of these emotions may be the same, but the internal rage is different. And Miss Anderson, in the plastic impersonation of Hermione, showed consummate ability. She could understand and grapple with affection—calm, enduring, noble, wifely affection. It is so much easier to analyze and so much more wholesome, too, if we would only believe it, than the stormy insanity of unattained love. Miss Anderson was absolutely impressive.

In the trial scene her resignation was truly pathetic. To think that she should have wasted so much time demonstrating the fact that the passion of Juliet was utterly incomprehensible to her, when to such a role as Hermione she could bring such admirable pitiful intensity!

There is the error of the aspirant. "I want to go upon the stage," she says. "Engage me a 'Home and Juliet' company." A girl would feel slighted if you told her you didn't think she thoroughly realized the change from Hermione to Perdita was most artistically managed. Miss Anderson's voice was different in the roles. She kept her deep, contralto tones for Hermione, and her lighter, more soprano notes for Perdita. And what a revelation she was as her own daughter! Mr. Abbey could not charge a price that would not be worth a sight of that dance in act IV.

Two services: an American audience is not kept in every home. All mothers are recommended to urge their children during the cold season to allow a pastille to melt in their mouths while out on errands or going to school.

Coroner Messemmer Is Happy.

A handsome smoker's set of silver has just been received by Coroner Messemmer. He won it as the most popular coroner at the fair of the school connected with the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer.

The fair was held shortly before election. Sheriff

Grant won a gold-headed cane as the most popular candidate for Mayor.

This was one of the many places where Coroner

Messemmer's work for Sheriff Grant told. He worked day and night, and as hard as if he himself had been a candidate. In all he spent about $4,000 for the election, but it was as happy as if he had not spent a dollar, because Sheriff Grant was successful.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES, which were awarded the highest distinction by a medical jury at the International Exhibition at Brussels, have proved to be a first class remedial agent in all catarrhs of the organs of respiration and digestion.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are prescribed by physicians in diseases of the lungs and chest and asthma. The benefit derived from their use is unsurpassed, and even in the most chronic cases they soothe, ease and stimulate.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are preferable to all similar preparations because they are a natural remedy, an unadulterated product of the springs, containing in an undiminished degree all the sanative principles of these springs.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are prepared exclusively under the personal supervision and control of W. STOKELIZING, M. D., K. K., Sanitary Councilor.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are unequalled as a solvent in coughs and catarrhs, even in the most chronic cases. Their action is unsurpassed.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are a superior remedy in whooping cough and diphtheria; in the former they lessen the prostrating of the attack while preventing the latter disease, which cannot take hold in a throat not affected by catarrh.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES derive increased value from the fact of having a very favorable action upon the organs of digestion.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES ought to be kept in every home. All mothers are recommended to urge their children during the cold season to allow a pastille to melt in their mouths while out on errands or going to school.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES are for use at nearly all drug stores at 50c. a box. Should your druggist not keep them kindly address the
